

The Gush Katif population was comprised of an Israeli mosaic featuring religious, traditional and secular ways of life; diverse ethnic groups; immigrants, people from development towns and people from Israel's center; farmers living side by side to Yeshiva students. This all combined to create special communities.

Community

In Gush Katif everybody knew each other. There was a strong connection and cooperation between the different communities. Gush Katif also had various charities.

The special ambience of Gush Katif was conducive to prayer – whether in the synagogue, or the natural and simple prayer of the farmer.
